Balaam prophesied for money. He agreed to curse the Israelites, but blessed them instead. His donkeys spoke when an angel blocked their path.

God told the Israelites to march around the big walls of the city. On the seventh day, on the seventh circuit, the walls fell down. All the city was destroyed, except for Rahab and her family.

“By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were circled about seven days.”

“Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.”

“Achan kept some riches for himself. Israel failed because God was not with them. All Achan’s family and possessions were destroyed. God will not tolerate direct rebellion, even from just one man.”

“Then Jehovah opened the eyes of Balaam, and he saw the angel of Jehovah standing in the way, with his sword drawn in his hand; and he bowed his head, and fell on his face.”

“God sent poisonous snakes to punish Israel for complaining.”

“So the Lord was with Joshua; and his fame was proclaimed throughout all the country.”

“Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole, and it came to pass, that if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived.”
